The Scio Central School District is a small district located in western New York. The district's focus is to use all available educational resources to prepare its students to be successful in the globally connected world. The district emphasizes to its students the importance of taking responsibility, as well as respecting the faculty and fellow students. The curriculum in the district allows students to earn college credit in conjunction with their high school classes. The district also has a close relationship with Alfred State College, offering graduates conditional admission into the school after graduation.

About the Location: Scio is a rural community known to be extremely safe and family oriented.
