SCHOOL PROFILE

Tacoma Public School District is well known for offering outstanding academics, with all high schools in the District having a very good reputation. With approximately 1,500 students each, the schools have the ability and resources to offer a diverse range of courses. The district has been a “lighthouse” district for many years and often leads the way for the state’s 296 districts in piloting new programs and implementing innovative ideas. It also has the Hilltop Artists in Residence glassblowing program which is nationally renowned. The Tacoma Public Schools have an extensive special education department and programs for highly capable students.
